Harding Funeral Train Leaves For Washington Tonight; Coolidge Says He Will Carry Out Policies of Predecessor

NEW PRESIDENT IS ON HIS WAY TO WASHINGTON

Telegraphed From Capital, Is Administered By His Father In Vermont Farmhouse at 2:47 A. M. Leaves for Washington at 9:30.

Telegraph to The Freeman. Rutland, Vt., Aug. 3.—President Calvin Coolidge left Rutland for Washington on a special train at 9:30 a. m. The presidential party arrived here by automobile from Plymouth and immediately entered into car number 99 of the Rutland Railroad for the first lap of the journey to Albany.

The special train will reach Albany this afternoon and will be attached to the regular New York train of the New York Central Railroad, reaching New York at five p. m. Standard time. The president's special car will be attached to the New York Central train at Albany.

Due In Capital At 10:55. The final lap of the journey to the capital will be made over the Pennsylvania railroad leaving New York at 5:45.

The Pennsylvania train is to arrive in Washington at 10:55 (standard time) tonight. The president and his party will have their special car at the Grand Central Station and be taken to the Pennsylvania station in automobiles. The secret service office in New York is making the arrangements for the transfer between stations.

Throng gathered at the railroad station to greet the new president and wish Godspeed on his journey to Washington. There were more than a thousand persons in the throng about the railroad station.

With the president and Mrs. Coolidge were P. W. Clement, former governor of Vermont.

Plans Changed. Several in the crowd stepped forward to greet the president and shake hands with him quietly. He did nothing other than the customary words of greeting.

The party went immediately to the special coach and private car of the president of the Rutland Railroad and the train left in a few minutes.

Following the departure of the train, railroad officials announced plans for the journey. Instead of going to Albany, the special train will be turned over to the New York Central at Troy and will run into New York as a special train, arriving at Troy at 12:45 p. m. and in New York at 4:30. The original plan was to attach the president's car to the regular New York Central train at Albany, reaching New York at 5 p. m.

Plymouth, Vermont, Aug. 3.—At 10 o'clock this morning, (Eastern standard time), Calvin Coolidge became president of the United States. In a dimly lighted room in the house of the Vermont hills, and in the presence of only a few witnesses, death was administered by John C. Coolidge, the new president's father. The older Coolidge is a notary public which qualifies him to officiate at this momentous event.

The proper form of oath was not read and an urgent telegram was sent to Washington, D. C., to obtain the proper form of oath.

With no other visible form of emotion, save the paleness of countenance, Mr. Coolidge stood beside the table with his right hand upon the Bible as his aged father read the oath.

Becomes President Coolidge. "I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

In the deep silence which followed, Mr. Coolidge said: "I will so help me God." Mr. Coolidge immediately began preparations to leave for Washington.

Word had been received of President Harding's death at midnight and in the interval until the oath of office was administered there was a great air of solemnity in the little house.

As President Coolidge took the oath, his wife stood nearby. Mr. Coolidge was dressed in a dark suit and black necktie. He was looking toward the late President Harding. Mrs. Coolidge wore a dark dress. Others present were Congressman Porter H. Dale, L. L. Fountain, editor of a Springfield, Mass., newspaper, and E. G. Geiss, assistant secretary to Mr. Coolidge.

Immediately after news of President Harding's death was received in Washington, secret service agents detailed to protect the new president.

Warren G. Harding

NO VICE-PRESIDENT FOR YEAR AND HALF

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The United States will be without a vice-president for the next year and a half.

The only changes in the system of government, however, will be the elevating of Secretary of State Hughes to ranking executive position, under President Coolidge, and the election of a permanent presiding officer for the senate. Hughes, under the constitution, would step into the presidency, in case the new executive died.

meet the Coolidge party and in accordance with law and custom, take him under their guard. Mr. Coolidge received the first news of President Harding's death from a telegram sent from San Francisco by George C. Christian, the late president's secretary. Immediately afterward newspaper correspondents began arriving at the Coolidge home with the information. The information from Mr. Christian read:

Palace Hotel San Francisco. Mr. Calvin Coolidge.

Plymouth, Vt. The president died instantly and without warning and while conversing with members of his family at 7:30 p. m. His physicians report that death was apparently due to some brain embolism, probably apoplexy.

GEORGE C. CHRISTIAN, JR.

At once the following message was sent to Mrs. Harding at San Francisco:

Mrs. Warren G. Harding. San Francisco, Cal.

We offer you our deepest sympathy. May God bless and keep you. CALVIN COOLIDGE. GRACE COOLIDGE.

Rush For Coolidge Home. There is no railway line running into North, the seat of the Coolidge home and soon the roads were choked with motor cars.

The elder Coolidge met the first detachment of newspaper correspondents at the door of his home. "We were in bed when the telephone manager at Bridgewater rushed in here and told us he had just caught a flash that President Harding was dead," said John C. Coolidge. "I awakened my son and daughter."

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge hastily dressed and rushed down stairs where visitors already had begun to gather. Mrs. Coolidge wept as she exclaimed to the International News Service correspondents.

"Poor Mr. Harding; I do feel so sorry for her. She has been so hopeful and brave. We are both shocked by the news. We could hardly believe it. We had made up our minds that the president was on the road to recovery. We are astounded by the tragedy."

President Coolidge issued the following statement:

Will Continue Harding Policies. "The world has lost a great and good man. I mourn his loss. He was my chief and my friend. It will be my purpose to carry out the policies which he has begun for the service of the American people. For this purpose I shall seek the cooperation of all those who have been associated with the president during his term in office. The new president showed his thoughtfulness by having a special room prepared for newspaper correspondents while awaiting the form of presidential oath from Washington.

The elder Coolidge, deeply grieved over the news of the president's death, remained on the veranda of his home during the interval, chatting in low tones with neighbors who had gathered. "It is all so sudden one hardly knows what to think," said the president's father. "We are all deeply shocked by the sad intelligence."

A Strange Inaugural. The actual scene of the swearing in was the more impressive by its simplicity. The deep silence of a midsummer night brooded over the countryside as John C. Coolidge, in a low but distinct voice, read the oath of office. The scene was made the more picturesque by contrast with the usual presidential inaugurations in Washington amidst vast crowds gathered from all parts of the nation.

The Coolidge home is a plain, two-story frame, nestled in the foothills of the Green mountains. Not since Theodore Roosevelt, while on a hunting trip, received news of the death of President McKinley, has the information of president's death been carried to his successor under such simple and rugged surroundings.

Flags at Half Mast. RADIO BROUGHT NEWS. Flags have been placed at half-staff about town today, and also draped in front of public buildings and also in front of a number of stores in respect to the memory of President Harding, who died Thursday night.

The first news of his death was received here by radio from W. D. A. P. station, Chicago. All radio broadcasting stations abandoned their programs for the night when the president died.

Fair at Eddyville. The annual fair of Eddyville M. E. Church will be held on Tuesday, August 7.

"THAT'S GOOD, GOOD," HARDING'S LAST WORDS.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 3.—President Harding died while Mrs. Harding was reading him an article descriptive of himself.

It was "A Calm Review of a Calm Man," by Samuel G. Blythe, appearing in a weekly publication. The article was a dispassionate analysis of the president and largely commendatory. "That's good, good," the president commented as Mrs. Harding paused to discuss the article.

Then a convulsive shudder came over him and he passed into his final sleep.

WASHINGTON IS IN MOURNING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 3.—With a profound feeling of personal loss because of its intimate official and private associations with President Harding during the two years that he occupied the White House, the national capital was plunged into deep mourning today as it awaited the return of the body of the chief executive from San Francisco.

Though stunned by the president's sudden death, high officials of both the administration and leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties joined with citizens from all walks of life in the expression of their sincere grief, while the machinery of the government came to a complete stop.

HARDING'S DEATH AFFECTS WILSON

News Kept From Him Until Morning For Fear of Effect on Former President's Own Health.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Woodrow Wilson, stricken with serious illness while president under circumstances strangely similar to those preceding President Harding's death, did not learn of the sorrowful event until this morning. News of the president's death was withheld from Mr. Wilson throughout the night because members of his family feared the shock of an announcement might have serious effects upon his own condition. When informed this morning, the former president was visibly affected. He will issue a statement later.

Mr. Wilson, while now showing remarkable improvement, over the physical condition in which he left the White House on March 4, 1913, has suffered keenly from the hot Washington summer. He is said to tire easily from physical exertions and it was felt by members of his family that to awaken him in the middle of his nightly rest with news of the president's death, might cause such distress to him as to endanger his own health.

Death Came Instantaneously to President As Wife Sat Reading To Him—She Is Bearing Up Bravely—Blood Vessel Burst in Brain—Body Will Lie in State at Washington and Be Buried at Marion, Ohio.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—While a great nation bowed reverently in its grief today, the body of Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States, lay in stately simplicity on the topmost floor of a great hotel, three thousand miles away from the capital.

Funeral Train Starts Tonight. The president died quietly, easily, and with a suddenness that was shocking at 7:30 o'clock last night, only a few hours after the physician who had been hovering him for days had issued the most favorable news yet of his brief illness.

At about the same hour tonight, 7:30 p. m., there will start from this far western city a funeral procession across the continent such as the nation has never before witnessed—a funeral train bearing the body of a president of the United States across the three thousand miles of deserts, plains and mountains.

The immediate cause of the president's shocking death was officially announced today to be cerebral apoplexy, a rupture of a blood vessel in the axis of the brain near the respiratory center.

The Death Scene. He was half reclining in his bed at that time. A few feet from him was Mrs. Harding, reading to him a magazine article in the room were two nurses, no one else.

Suddenly and totally without warning, there was a slump in the half reclining figure on the bed. A scarcely audible noise, something of a moan, yet not a moan, came from the president.

There was a startled exclamation from Mrs. Harding, a sudden rush from the nurses to the bedside, then one of them dashed the few feet into the hallway.

"Doctor Boone, Dr. Boone," she screamed, calling the name of the naval doctor who has been constantly on duty since the president first became ill.

Behind her was Mrs. Harding. "Get all the doctors quickly, for God's sake," she said in a voice that was not a scream, but which penetrated every corner of the quiet eighth floor of the Palace Hotel.

Across the corridor was Dr. Sawyer, who has been the president's family physician for many years, and who was acting as chief of the president's medical staff. He heard the commotion and leaped across the few feet into the president's bed chamber.

Death Instantaneous. "Warren, Warren," said Mrs. Harding. It was the name she must frequently use in addressing the president.

Sawyer grabbed the limp hand, bending over the bed. The president of the United States was dead.

Without a groan, without a cry, without a struggle, he had passed away in that instant.

No word had passed his lips to give the people in the room a warning. Something had snapped in his brain. The doctors say it was probably the instantaneous rupture of a blood vessel, flooding the brain with a sudden rush of engorged blood. Death, they believe, was instantaneous.

This is the story of the president's death, as gathered from the few who are in a position to know.

The first bulletin of his death said that "Mrs. Harding and the two nurses, Miss Ruth Powderly and Miss Sue Rausser, were in the room at the time."

Later a correction was issued on this bulletin, stating that General Sawyer also was present.

A Dramatic End. No sudden climax ever conceived by the brain of a dramatist could have equalled that of the passing of the president. Only a few hours before the doctors had reported him gaining rapidly and steadily in the combination of illness that only five days ago forced him to abandon the most epochal trip ever undertaken by a president of the United States and which was more than half concluded at the time of his breakdown.

There were few about on the eighth floor of the hotel at the time. The corridors, which have been jammed with the coming and going of constant crowds for days, were almost deserted. It was the dinner hour. The members of the cabinet and personal friends of the president who have been his constant companions on the Alaskan tour, were downstairs, dining.

Eight floors below there was the customary dinner throng. Gay, happy, gathering in the great dining room to the accompaniment of an orchestra.

Commotion At Hotel. Into this crowd there suddenly dashed frantic bell-boys, baying members of the cabinet, the members of the official party, but loudest of all the doctors.

Dr. Boone, the naval officer whose name had leaped first to the lips of a frantic and terrified nurse, was dining with General John J. Pershing. He was out of the dining room and across the lobby into the elevators while the boys were still running between the tables.

Then commotion broke loose in the hotel. Everyone knew that something was wrong. No one knew what.

Shortly the word came down. The president was dead.

The death of the president was announced exactly the same way as the bulletins on his condition have been issued every day since his illness.

Judson C. Welliver, chief clerk of the White House, went to the president's apartment to find out what was "wrong." As a member of the White House staff he was permitted to go beyond the "deadline" which was established several days ago, and beyond which the newspaper correspondents were not allowed.

Shortly he returned down the corridor.

"There will be a bulletin in a few minutes," he said to the waiting reporters. He went into a stenographer's room and there was a clatter of typewriters.

When he emerged he silently handed out this:

The Death Bulletin.

Aug. 2, 1923, 7:35 p. m.—The president died instantaneously and without warning and while conversing with members of his family at 7:30 p. m. Death was apparently due to some brain involvement, probably an apoplexy. During the day he had been free from discomfort and there was every justification for anticipating a prompt recovery."

It was signed by the five physicians who have been constantly in attendance: Dr. Sawyer, Dr. Boone, Dr. Work, all of Washington, and Dr. Willbur, president of the American Medical Association, and Dr. C. M. Cooner, eminent heart specialist, of San Francisco.

The cabinet officers present, Secretaries Work, Henry and Wallace and Attorney General Daugherty, meanwhile had gathered in a room adjoining that where the president's body lay covered with a sheet, reverently drawn over it by the weeping nurses. They had a duty to perform.

It consisted of the following telegram to Vice-President Coolidge, now by the whim of an inscrutable fate, the chief executive of the great republic in the world:

Coolidge Notified. "The president died at 7:30 p. m. from a stroke of cerebral apoplexy. The end came peacefully and without warning."

Each of the four signed it silently—the attorney general with fingers that trembled. His eyes were wet. Those who knew of the almost brotherly affection between Warren G. Harding and Harry M. Daugherty did not wonder at his emotion. Few men in American public life have been closer to each other than were "Warren" and "Harry." By some, Harry M. Daugherty was considered the Warwick who had been largely instrumental in lifting Warren G. Harding from his editorial chair into the senate, and from the senate into the White House.

His grief was pitiful. He seemed dazed by the shock, and there was none who saw his grief stricken figure slump down the hall but who felt a silent wave of sympathy.

By a strange freak of fate, Daugherty had not seen the president since his arrival in San Francisco. He could have—but he said no—that he didn't want to "bother him." Now he was dead and Daugherty saw through the half open door the figure of the man he loved, cold in death.

In the death room itself preparations were shortly begun to make the physical arrangements necessary for the transportation of the body back to the capital, where it will lay in state while a great nation pays tribute.

Mrs. Harding Did Not Collapse. Mrs. Harding, whose life a year ago had been despaired of, and who suffered one partial collapse on the present trip, was led from the room, biting her lips and clenching her hands to restrain the emotion that welled within her and which she was controlling only by the most visible effort. She was crying, but she did not collapse, earlier reports to the contrary.

Mrs. E. E. Ronsberg, sister of the president, who had come up from her home in Santa Anna only a few days ago to see her brother for the first time in two years, assisted her to her room. She too was crying but to her room, she was assisted by the president's sister she undertook to fire a few directions.

Then the undertaker and his assistants came in and the room which shall forever be historic, was closed while they began their work of preparing the body for its long, sorrowful journey across the continent.

The same party that accompanied

POLAR BEAR'S SUGGESTION

"I have a suggestion to make," said the Polar Bear to Billie Brownie.

Billie Brownie had come to the zoo to pay the bear a visit early one summer morning.

"I'd like to hear it," said Billie Brownie. "You know I've been visiting another big park lately, where there were many, many animals."

"I have met mountain sheep and but-faloes, elk, moose, and many members of the antelope family.

"I have seen beavers and porcupines, too. Mrs. Antelope told me that she never cared to have the babies come even to the big parks. Unless they could be absolutely free she didn't want them to come."

"But, you see, Polar Bear, though I have traveled a great deal, and though I may travel a great deal more, every once in a while I want to talk to you."

"Gracious me," said the Polar Bear. "I did not invite you to come and see me to tell me of other interesting animals you have seen."

"What is more, I do not consider them interesting. And if you talk about them I will be very angry."

"Your disposition isn't of the best, anyway," said Billie Brownie, "so I suppose I must do as you say."

The Polar Bear did not mind what Billie Brownie said about his disposition as long as he listened to his suggestion.

"This is my suggestion, Billie Brownie," began the Polar Bear.

"You know I feel that you are one with many friends. You know the fairies and all those creatures, and you're friendly with Old Man Weather.

"He is the one I want you to talk to for me. That is my suggestion."

"I think it would be a good idea if you talked to him."

"I don't believe I quite understand," said Billie Brownie.

"Well," said the Polar Bear, "every summer things happen the same way. I will admit the keeper does his best for me. Of course I'm not particularly friendly with the keeper."

"I'm not friendly by nature. But the keeper does as much as he can. He keeps putting all the ice he can into my den. Yes, he does do that."

"But my idea is better than the keeper's idea of giving me ice at different times."

"My idea is a very smart one. As I said, every summer things happen in the same way."

"By that I mean that every summer it becomes warm, then hotter still, then broiling hot."

"And each summer the papers publish pictures of zoo polar bears and say that we're not in favor of the hot weather and that our keepers can never give us too much ice."

"Well, isn't that true?" asked Billie Brownie.

"That's true," said the Polar Bear. "But my idea is to have you go around to any number of people and have them sign a great petition which will be started by the Polar Bears, and this petition will be delivered by you to Old Man Weather."

"In the petition we will ask him not to have any more hot weather."

"I think if enough of us got together and signed such a petition it would do a great deal of good."

"Your suggestion is rather unusual," said Billie Brownie, "but don't you see, Polar Bear, that there are all sorts of people and all sorts of animals with all sorts of desires and tastes?"

"That is why Old Man Weather has to give such a variety of weather. He is almost always being grumbled about by some one or other, but he has to bear that."

"He spent many years thinking up the best way to do about the weather—and he decided that the best way was to have plenty of variety."

"I'm sorry, Polar Bear, that I cannot follow your suggestion, but you see there are some who love the summer, and Old Man Weather has to think of them!"

"He has his hands full as it is, Polar Bear."

SUMMER PIES AND PASTRY

A good rich pastry is more easily digested than one which lacks shortening and is tough.

Pastry that is made quickly and handled very little is much more apt to be flaky. Take one cupful of shortening to three cupfuls of flour, a half-teaspoonful of salt and just enough ice water to hold the mixture together. Some good cooks add baking powder—a half-teaspoonful or less—but the best authorities agree that baking-powder crust is very apt to soak and is undesirable for berry pies, which have juice. Cut in the shortening with two knives; when well-mixed, add the water, roll out and line the tin with the crust.

There are any number of delicious one-crust pies, which are especially wholesome for warm weather.

Current Pies.—Take two cupfuls of ripe currants; crush and add one cupful of sugar, the yolks of two eggs, slightly beaten, and a tablespoonful of flour mixed with four tablespoonfuls of water. Bake the shell and fill with the above mixture, which has been cooked for five minutes—until well scalded through. Cover with a meringue, using the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs and four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Brown slightly in a moderate oven.

Blueberry Meringue Pie.—Take one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour and the yolks of two eggs. Beat all together and add three cupfuls of blueberries. Bake with one crust and cover with a meringue, using the whites of the eggs, beaten stiff, and four tablespoonfuls of sugar; flavor to taste. Less sugar and no flavoring may be used and half a dozen marshmallows, cut in halves, placed about the meringue will make a pretty and tasty frosting.

INSECTS ATTACK
TROLLEY RIDERS

Back 'Em Off Me, and I'll Knock 'Em Off You." Was the Slogan of the Passengers Thursday Evening. Thursday evening riders on the trolley cars adopted a new slogan of "Back 'em off me, and I'll knock 'em off you," and there was a wild intermingling of handkerchiefs as swarms of insects invaded the open cars and made the ride uncomfortable for the passengers. It looked as though every insect abroad that evening had decided to enjoy free rides up and down the road on the Colonial division, and more than that to see how much fun they could have doing it. In swarms they boarded the trolley cars and alighted on the necks and faces of the riders. Insects large and small made up the attacking army, and every one aboard the trolley car became active in sweeping them from the clothing of the one sitting in front. The low neck dresses worn by many of the women passengers were just to the liking of the insects who persisted in crawling down the bare necks where they could not be reached until the blushing passenger reached home and disrobed. To add to the gaiety of the occasion for the host of insects were augmented by swarms of small black hard shell bugs who crawled over the white collars worn by the men and who emitted a loud report when smacked by an energetic hand, and left a broad red splash against the white background. No extra charge was made by the trolley company for the entertainment provided.

Some Ground for Belief.
A belief met with through all the south of France is that the position of a drowned body may be discovered by a floating loaf of bread. Possibly the only scientific basis is that the loaf is apt to be carried by a current of water just as a body is.

UNITED CIGAR
AGENCY DOWNTOWN

The stationery store at 48 Broadway, conducted by Epstein and Klein, will open as a United Cigar Store Saturday, August 4. The store will be owned by the two young men as before, but the arrangement will enable them to give the advantages enjoyed by the customers of United Cigar Stores. The store will be from tomorrow on a sales agency of the United, United Cigar Store brands, prices and coupons and certificates will be handled. Celebrating its opening tomorrow souvenirs will be given as well as offerings in certificates. The store has been recently painted the usual red on the outside and the inside renovated. The window display is attracting considerable attention.

First Example of Rickets.
The bones of an ape which had been confined in a Tibetan temple some 2,000 B. C. have furnished the first known example of rickets.

Truth.
The Greek philosopher, Protagoras, maintained that all is illusion and that there is no such thing as truth. But Aristotle refuted him thus: "Your proposition is true or false; if it be false, then you are answered; if it be true, then there is something true and your proposition falls."
Reptile to Be Avoided.
Centipedes have an exceedingly venomous bite, that of the giant centipede, a native of Venezuela, being almost equal to that of the viper. Unlike the scorpion, they do not sting, but bite by means of a pair of strong "forceps" placed horizontally at the mouth.

WARREN G. HARDING.

Elected President by the overwhelming majority of voters who were weary of hysteria and rainbow chasing and who wanted to pursue the way to a return to normalcy and national sanity, Warren G. Harding came into office at a time of great need for the services of a man of strong character and sane mind. It requires courage of a high order to enable any man to remain apparently inactive in the midst of turmoil to stop, look and listen and induce by precept and example, others to do the same—to take time to think before acting—to wait for the tumult to subside—to proceed only after mature deliberation when the thoughtless are loudly demanding immediate action, and then to proceed carefully, testing each step, and still go far in the way of solid progress.

President Harding met the requirements. Without bluster or avoidable friction he went his way, leading the nation back to sanity and common sense. Great progress had been made, but there is yet a long way to go. That his life ended with his task unfinished is the nation's misfortune.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

The country is fortunate in the fact that the new president, Calvin Coolidge, is no untitled and inexperienced man. As Governor of Massachusetts he displayed ability and courage of a high order. As Vice-President, due to the careful forethought of President Harding, he was more than the usual figurehead and had opportunities never before given a Vice-President to become familiar with the policies of the administration and the affairs of government. President Harding's plan to invite the Vice-President to act as an ex-officio member of the cabinet and take part in meetings of that body was novel, but its usefulness is now more apparent than ever. The new President is in a position to intelligently and without delay continue the policies of his predecessor. This is another debt that the country owes to the foresight of Warren G. Harding.

STORM KING.

Notwithstanding the scenic beauty of various sections of New York state, including the Adirondacks, the Catskills, other mountain ranges, and not forgetting the artistic effects of the lowlands embracing the Hudson, Mohawk and Lebanon valleys, Storm King now takes its niche, not only among the inspiring natural pictures of the Empire State, but jumps into competition with the scenic grandeur of any country in the world. To some who have been hitherto fortunate enough to feast their eyes on the more renowned of nature's handiwork Storm King is superb, but to others who gaze has been limited to a smaller area Storm King is a revelation.

The panoramic view ever before the eye when driving over Storm King is entralling, and, voicing unanimous expression of those who have climbed the long, but gradual, incline appreciation follows in heart beats rather than audible outbursts. From almost any elevation along the route there is also a moving picture of a great transportation system, the Hudson with its craft flowing serenely between throbbing locomotives on either side of the river, lending animation to a painting that must be seen, studied moreover, to determine its perfection, every detail contributing to the glorious possession of the people of New York.

The cost or scheme of construction does not enter the thoughts of those who have gone over Storm King, the material side of the achievement having no welcome in the minds of those who have made the ascent from either the north or the south over the serpentine curves, each and every one adding increased splendor to the hour along the well-protected mountain ledge high above the unsurpassable Hudson. What Storm King cost will never be a subject of inquiry, because whatever it was Storm King is open and the engineering skill and the artistic victory accomplished are such that the cost was none too much.

The people of New York state should feel proud of Storm King. There is no doubt that those who have gone over it, either in driver or relatively in the four-in-hand of automobiles, give it approval so far as adjectives will permit. It is a drawing, not one done on canvas but one done by a greater artist, which will hardly be questioned by anybody touring from Albany to New York or New York to Albany on the west side of the Hudson river. Storm King in stature is majestic and munificent in its bounty to the finer side of those grateful for that which is not estimated in dollars or dividends but which makes the long, long trail smoother and sweeter.

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Do elephants have good hearing? They seem to have bigger ears than anything in creation.
2. If frogs and toads and such creatures are cold-blooded, why aren't they reptiles?
3. Do buzzards hunt by smell or by sight?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. I found a nest with a sort of false bottom in it and a spoiled egg underneath. What does this mean?

Probably the lone egg was laid by a cowbird in some small bird's nest. Cowbirds are common visitors, before the actual owner, had laid her eggs. Some little birds are clever enough to get rid of one incubator by making a new floor to the nest, which allows them to raise their own brood undisturbed.

2. Do full grown bears ever sleep in tree tops?
Bears often do not literally sleep in the top of the tree, but as he finds branches fit to hold his weight. It is said by a bear hunter that the black bear takes special advantage of such a sleeping place in a territory where he has the right to roam. The full grown bear is not alone, but he cannot annoy a relative, that comes a bed so, as above the reach, 3. Which end of a snake does a snake pull out of when shedding?

It is the head end. The skin around the eyes and top of the head by rubbing against some hard surface, the snake thrusts its head through the opening. The dead skin folds backward around the neck, and as the snake continues to wriggle forward, the old skin keeps turning inside out until emptied of the snake's body.

DAIRY

FAILURE IN DAIRY BUSINESS

Greatest Factor to Success is the Man Himself—He Must Like Cows and Care for Them.

Failure in the dairy business is due to one of three things:
1. The business itself.
2. The cow.
3. The man.

The business is sound. This is shown largely by the fact that the income derived from the dairy business is larger than the income derived from all other classes of live stock on the farm combined.

The cow must be a good cow, one that can return a good labor income to her owner.

But the greatest factor to success in the dairy business is the man.

He must know his good cows and not guess which are his good ones.

He must be a dairymen, and like cows, like to work with them and like to care for them. He must not be in the dairy business just in order to pay off that grocery bill contracted when he had no use for cows.

He must remember that the fundamental basis of the dairy business lies in the maternity of the dairy cow.

He must know how to feed profitably and apply that knowledge and to feed only cows that can return a profit.

He must use a good purebred bull to keep up the future quality of his herd.

He must know how to work and apply that knowledge.—Harold R. Lascelles, Fieldman, State Dairy Commission.

TREATMENT OF CALF SCOURS

Cut Feed One-Half Until Animal Becomes Hungry, Then Give Dose of Castor Oil.

To treat a case of scours, cut the feed to half or even less than that until the calf has become hungry. A dose of one to three ounces of castor oil or paraffin oil will help to clean out the animal and may well be given. Three parts of formalin in a hundred parts of water, added to the milk at the rate of a teaspoonful to the pound of milk will sometimes relieve the trouble. Another very satisfactory treatment is to add about four to five drops of fluid extract of sassafras to about one ounce of paraffin or castor oil and give it to the calf before each feeding of milk. It is always advisable to reduce the milk to a half or a third and divide that reduced quantity into from two to four feedings a day.

KEEP ALL HEIFERS GROWING

Young Animals Are Unduly Neglected by Many Dairymen—Feed Silage and Legume Hay.

Returns get our attention. Possibly for this reason the heifer calves are unduly neglected. But this stock should be kept growing normally. With silage and clover or alfalfa hay, one should feed each heifer from two to five pounds of farm-grown grains per day. If no silage is available, feed two pounds of corn daily with all the clover or alfalfa hay the heifers will consume. With silage and no legume hay, a good ration consists of a portion of silage and fodder or mixed hay with a grain mixture consisting of equal parts of corn and linseed meal.

FALL AND SPRING CALVING

Three Years' Test Conducted by Mississippi Experiment Station to Determine Advantages.

Results of three years' work to determine the advantages of spring and fall calving with dairy cattle, made by J. S. Moore of the Mississippi Experiment Station, show that cows calving in the fall produced an average of 172 pounds of milk and 18.4 pounds of butterfat more than cows calving in the spring. In a comparison of early and late fall calving the average difference per year per cow was 683 pounds of milk and 27.5 pounds of butterfat in favor of late fall calving.

NEEDFUL MINERALS IN FEED

Most Lime Contained in Legume Hays While Phosphorus Is Found in Bran and Middlings.

The common dairy feeds containing the most lime are the legume hays, cowpeas, clover, alfalfa and soy bean, that from cowpeas containing the most. Those which contain the most phosphorus are wheat bran, wheat middlings and linseed meal in the order given. None of the concentrates contain as much lime as the legumes do, and no roughage contains as much phosphorus as the concentrates named.

Benefits From Cow Testing.

Cow testing increases the average production of the dairy herd, first, by eliminating all low-producing cows, and second, by enabling one to select the foundation animals for his herd on the basis of performance.

Feed Silage to Calves.

Calves may be fed silage in connection with skim milk as soon as they are old enough to eat it. They will begin taking a little silage at three weeks old, and they can be fed from then on as much as they will eat.

SALVAGING MONEY WITH STEEL PIN

Extraordinary Work of the Federal Redemption Bureau.

MILLION HANDLED EVERY DAY

Not so long ago a building contractor in New York drew out all his savings, $3,000, from a bank and took it home on Saturday night. Sunday his house was burned to the ground. He dug up ashes from where he believed his money had been and brought them to Washington. After an examination of these charred bits of paper, worthless to the untrained eye, the treasury gave him $2,000.

Last winter an oil tanker was cruising the West Indies when an explosion occurred in the after cabin, in which was stored the ship's safe, containing the pay roll of $2,500. The skipper of the ship dashed up all that was left of this currency—shreds, odds and ends of blackened paper—and sent them to Washington. He got back almost $2,000.

When Astoria, Ore., was swept by fire last December, the town's bank was left a smoking ruin, with some $50,000 in cash buried in the embers. One of the directors gathered up all and brought them to the treasury. He was able to recover about $35,000 in return for this seeming debris.

A chemical plant in New Jersey sent in some ten-dollar bills which had dropped into a vat of acid. They had been shriveled up to the size of a calling card—but were still worth $10. From an employee in a rolling mill came a dollar bill which had been pressed out to nearly a foot in length. He got a new one of regular size.

A man from Texas forwarded to the treasury a package of money, all in bits the size of a pin-head. He said that he had $100 put away in a tea kettle, that mice had entered and made a nest there, chewing his money to fragments. The department made its examination of the mutilated currency. It found, instead of $100, five one-dollar bills which had been torn to particles by hand. This man is now paying a professional visit to the Atlanta federal prison.

Million a Day.

Such, says the New York Times, is the day's work in the redemption bureau of the treasury. Here, besides money which has been accidentally destroyed, all the old worn currency is sifted out of circulation. More than $1,000,000 a day passes through the skilled fingers of a score of women, who remove the old money, have it cut up and later destroyed. Here, too, a good part of the counterfeit currency is spotted. They catch a bad bill or the average of one a day.

The identification of ruined money is one of the most difficult jobs in the whole government service. There are three expert women assigned to this work. One is the chief, who has been doing this kind of work for years; the other two are her assistants, who are acquiring the long experience which is so essential in reclaiming unrecognizable currency. To the layman the task of piecing together these bits of burned or stained paper which has its worth in gold seems most baffling.

Several hundred bundles of destroyed money pass over the desks of these three women in the course of a week. With their eyes and fingers they are able to salvage about $100,000, or about 75 per cent of the worth of the currency destroyed. Most of the cases are money which has been burned down to a brittle black ash.

The treasury is not anxious to give this service much publicity. "Counterfeiters, you know," declare the officials, "end lift their eyebrows. It is a hard place to get into; you need elaborate authorization to pass by the many guards and step down dim-lit corridors on the ground floor of the treasury building. The thick metal screening gives you the impression of being in a prison—a prison built to keep hundreds of millions of dollars from making an escape out into a not-too-honest world.

"Workers in Ashes."

She sits at an ordinary desk, the chief of these "workers in ashes," with abundant sunlight streaming through the window. Her name—but she prefers anonymity, harmonious with the traditions of all expert government servants. About her are piled numerous little boxes, crudely wrapped and marked, sent in from all over the country. They contain the remains of what was once clean, useful money. She opens one of the packages. It contains ashes, tiny bits no larger than your little finger nail. They break at the touch. An accompanying letter states there is some hundreds of dollars, perhaps thousands, in that charred debris. The expert dumps them out on her desk and the examination commences. Talk about putting together your intricate jig-saw puzzle! It is child's play compared to the wonders of reconstruction this woman performs with this rich dust.

She has no elaborate tools—no delicate forceps and probes and pliers. Her one instrument is a plain steel pin. She handles this with all the cunning of an etcher. This pin and her small, sensitive fingers—together they move the black particles about, separating them, putting the bits of each kind of bill together, and finally pasting them up in their proper position on sheets of white paper. To the ordinary eye these ashes look all alike, without a single distinguishing mark.

Quaint Chinese Custom.

A little silver dog, which a bridegroom wears as a pledge of fidelity, and a pair of silver ducks which the bride wears to insure prosperity and a large family, is a quaint custom of Chinese wedding ceremonies.

But not so to this expert, whose sight is so sharpened by experience that she can read the illegible markings on a burned bill as clearly as on brand-new money. Here is a sort of black art, a magic arrangement of ashes which, when she finishes, become as good as gold.

This Woman Knows Money.

In the first place, this woman knows money better than almost anybody else in the treasury. There are 78 different currency issues, and she carries them all in her head. No two issues are the same in any detail, from the digits in the corners to the background engraving. So thoroughly acquainted with this currency is this woman that she can be handed an infinitesimal portion of a bill which has been burned and if there was any printed mark on it, just a corner of a letter or a part of a background design, she can tell at once the kind of a bill it came from, the amount, the issue—and produce a duplicate of it and show you just where the fragment would fit in. How does she do it? That's her secret, but she has been training herself in this work for many, many years.

As has been said, most of the redemption of destroyed money deals with ashes. According to officials, the kitchen stove is probably used as a banking repository more frequently than is generally believed. Not a day passes but some housewife sends some ashes with a note stating that she put her money in the stove, forgot it and then cooked a meal. There was recently a case of an old man who put all his savings in a tin canister which he had secreted in the cellar of his home. Unfortunately he had set the can too near the furnace; his savings were scorched to black tinder.

Reclaimed Dead Soldiers' Money.

The redemption bureau also handles Cuban money, which is the same as ours. From the southern island are sent on bundles of this stuff, decayed by tropical weather. It looks worm-eaten, like mummy dust. The expert has to handle it even more gingerly than she does ashes, for fear of decomposing it to a fine powder.

Also the currency which was in the pockets of soldiers killed in France has been reclaimed by this expert. Here the bills have molded, and chemical conditions have obliterated most of the distinctive markings of the bill. Nevertheless, a large part of these funds, which went down into a temporary grave and were saved when the soldier's body was dug up for permanent burial, has been salvaged and returned to the relatives of the dead man in fresh new bills.

"How could you tell counterfeit money sent in for reclamation?" the expert was asked.

"Easily. Burn counterfeit money and you will note the difference at once. The paper used is not the same and the engraved markings are different. We can spot it in the ash just as quickly as when it is new, quicker, in fact."

PLAN TO BEAUTIFY CITY STARTED BY BLIND MAN

A. E. Van Petten, newly elected president of the chamber of commerce of Topeka, Kan., who is totally blind, has started a beautification campaign for the city, as one of his first official acts. Every school child in the city has a part in the work, wearing a red tag bearing the pledge, "I won't pick flowers or break off branches; I won't cut across lawns, because it kills the grass; I want Topeka to be more beautiful."

DETECTIVE USES CHEMISTRY

French Sleuth Analyzes Dust in Solving Crime.

France always is interested in developing modern methods to trace down criminals, and M. Locard, head of the Lyons detective bureau, is giving his attention to dust.

Recently he was confronted with three prisoners whose occupations it was necessary to ascertain, despite their efforts at concealment. M. Locard placed the clothes of each man in a large paper bag, shook them, got the dust thus dislodged from the bag, analyzed it and determined that one man was a mason, another a carpenter and the third a coal dealer.

Dog Adopts Pig.

A fox hound has adopted nine orphan pigs at the farm of Nelson Tennant, of Fairmont, W. Va. At an adjoining farm a Persian cat brought home three groundhogs to care for in place of her three dead kittens.

Propagating Mistletoe.

Mistletoe may be established on trees by pressing the seeds when they are ripe in April gently into the bark of the tree. The seeds so placed should be covered with muslin for a time to prevent their being devoured by birds.

The open air services held by the Young Men's Christian Association have been attractive to a large number during the month of July. The first speaker for the month of August will be E. N. Huntress of Pittsfield, Mass. He has chosen for his subject "The Modern Prodigal Son." As he is an interesting speaker it is expected that there will be a large audience and the seats have been arranged to accommodate those coming.

Last year the audience heard Miss Harris, a noted evangelistic singer. She is expected to be in Kingston this coming Sunday and if so she will sing some Gospel songs. The orchestra under the leadership of Dr. Gillett has been helpful and inspiring and they are to be at the services throughout the month of August.

The services begin promptly at 7:30 and are open to the public.

FORCED TO GIVE BLOOD FOR WIFE

Razor Wielder is Held by Police While Doctors Perform Transfusion Operation.

MOONSHINE IS CAUSE

Chicago.—With the fumes of moonshine slowly dissipating from his aching head, Theodore Marfy, fifty-five years old, who had cut his wife's throat and, half an hour later, been forced to give his blood to save her life, sat, sober and repentant in his cell at West
Chicago avenue station.

"It's the booze that did it," he kept on muttering. "If I'd have known what I was doing I'd never have touched her. Why did I do it?" And every now and then he would raise his head from his hands and beseech his jailers to tell him some way in which he could make amends.

Hope She'll Recover.
Meanwhile in St. Mary's hospital,
Mrs. Martha Marfy, her throat swathed in bandages, began to show signs of recovery which it is hoped will be complete.

"The transfusion saved her," it was said. "As long as no infection sets in, there is no reason why she should not recover."

Mrs. Marfy, tired of her husband's continual drunkenness and constant abuse, had left his house and gone to live with her son, Andrew. There she took in washing while Andrew earned his living as a shoe repairer.

On Saturday night Marfy came around, inflamed with moonshine, it is said, and began one of his customary tirades. In the middle of his com-

Marfy Raved and Swore.

plaints, he suddenly drew a razor and,
before his son could intervene, had drawn it across his wife's throat.
Then he fled.

Rushes Her to Hospital.

Andrew rushed his mother to St.
Mary's hospital. The doctors examined her and declined to answer for her life unless an immediate blood transfusion were possible. At that moment Marfy, who had been picked up on the street when his blood-stained clothing was noticed, arrived in charge of detectives, anxious for identification.

The detectives heard the verdict of the doctors. "Here's the man," was the reply, and they held Marfy forward. He fought and protested, but after a quick conference, he was hustled down the corridor and into the operating room. A moment later he was stretched alongside his wife, his arm bared and ready for the operation.

Marfy raved and swore. But they were too many for him. A pint and a half of his blood passed from him to his wife, the vein was sewed up and he was taken away in a patrol wagon.

Now the law, having saved him against his will from the charge of murder, holds him on charges of assault with intent to kill.

"Sore" Man Shoots Officer.

Youngstown, O.—"I was sore because the police ignored 'black hand' letters that were sent to me," explained Giuseppe Siento, when arrested for killing Officer Wallace Flickinger. Siento was found after an all-night search.

Sight of Death Kills Woman.

New York.—Mrs. Anna Schiro fell dead in the bake shop of Gabriel Acompora when she saw the baker whirled to death in a dough mixer.
Mrs. Schiro went to the shop to buy bread, but fell when she saw Acom-pora being killed.

Quarter Million Chicks Burn.

Chicago.—A quarter of a million week-old chicks were burned to death when fire destroyed the coops of the Greenwood poultry farm, near here.
The flames destroyed the coops, worth $35,000, and $1,500 in cash hidden in one of them.

Dentist Held for Boy's Death.

Chicago.—Accused of causing the death of an eleven-year-old boy by

How to Feel Bully.

Be cheerful every morning until ten o'clock and the rest of the day will take care of itself, and then you can go to the chapter meetings and feel sure that you will greet your brothers with a real fraternal smile and hand-shake. Try it. It works fine. It will make you feel bully.

If our carelessness equaled our carelessness, we should all be too rich to be happy.

Meaningless Resolution—"One arrest for speeding is enough for me.
Hereafter I will drive with reason-

FOREIGN-BORN
AND PROHIBITION

Comment of Their Press on Governor Smith's Action Shows That Most of Them Favor More Liberal Enforcement Legislation.

There were 13,712,764 foreign born inhabitants in the United States on the first day of December, 1922.
On the 6th day of November, 1923, election day, their voting strength will be 6,208,697 naturalized men and women. There are upwards of five thousand newspapers printed in foreign languages in this country, which constitute the only newspapers read by these people. Among Judge Clearwater's activities is that of a member of the Foreign Language Information Service of the country, the object of which is to "interpret the immigrant to America and America to the immigrant" and to him The Freeman is indebted for the following epitome of some of the leading foreign language newspapers upon the subject of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act. A significant feature of the discussion by the foreign newspaper editors is their practically unanimous conclusion that in the coming presidential election, Governor Smith will play a striking role, and an equally interesting feature of their attitude is the prohibition is stoutly defended by Russian and Lithuanian editors and by the more important Swedish and Szechoslavak journals. On the other hand, the governor's attitude in signing the Mullan-Gage repealer warmly is praised by large groups of Italian, German and Jewish editors. The Freeman submits the views of these journals in order to enable its readers to obtain a first hand knowledge of the opinions of this large element of our foreign born population.

Speaking to Italians with Republican party sympathies, Il Progresso, New York, says, "Governor Smith has proved that he is wet, and this will be very beneficial to him. Anderson is dismayed and like all fanatics is prophesying many kinds of misfortune for Smith, but we are certain the governor will never regret his act." The independent and moderate Corriere D'America, New York, finds that "it is not prohibition itself that has brought so many people to a state bordering on revolt, it is the absurd interpretation of what constitutes prohibition, and the fanatical methods used for its enforcement." Pointing to the court verdict that medical prescriptions must be free from restraint under the prohibition law, Il Nuovo Veneto, Chicago, reminds us that every citizen is free to act on his own lawyer, and adds with arresting logic, "Why should a citizen not retain the constitutional right to act as his own physician and prescribe his own liquor as desired?"

"A clarity that can be found only rarely, even among great scholars," marked the enforcement act veto message by Governor Smith, says the Jewish Morning Journal, New York.
"He expressed," according to this paper, "the will of a huge majority of the citizens of the state," but the political promise is that "he has only harmd himself, although it may prove otherwise later on. In a spirit of reasoned comment The Day, New York, declares that "No one will pretend that the fight is purely that of state rights. If New York had been overwhelmingly dry, New York would not have objected to the Mullan-Gage Act, nor even to the 'double jeopardy' aspect of the law. By his obvious sincerity and conviction, Governor Smith has made himself a national figure."

Another Gettysburg?
The German New York Herald believes that "Since this stone has been torn from the prohibition edifice other rents and cracks will follow. . . . Governor Smith has apparently become a bigger figure in the national life because of his signature." And the Chicago Abend-post says: "Other important states will follow the New York example.
... Then the most objectionable clauses in the Volstead law will be discarded." In the eyes of the Cincinnati Freie Presse, Governor Smith's proposal that the separate states be allowed to govern the alcoholic content of beverages, within a wider federal limit, "renders a service to the whole country." The Detroiter Abendpost rejoices because

"Al" proved he had not forgotten the half million votes he received last year," but the Cleveland Wacheiter Und Anzeiger recalls "the fanatical stand of the Democratic Southern States in favor of prohibition" and considers the nomination of Smith for president next year to be "highly improbable." "We may compare the present situation with the time when the battle of Gettysburg was fought," the Newark Freie Zeitung exclaims, "... But just as some big battles followed Gettysburg before slavery was abolished, the liberal element will have to struggle for many years to come before common sense is entirely victorious."

The Polish Dziennik Zwiazkowy, Chicago, thinks "a serious blow to prohibition" has been struck in New York and the issued "raised to the level of the most important national problem, but it does not look for the saloon to come back as a result of settlement in New York state." "Undoubtedly," it concedes, "Governor Smith will go to the Democratic convention and be put forward as a candidate by those who like to have a glass of good beer or wine, and are opposed to poisoning the people with present liquors." Reviewing what he terms the many contradictions of the prohibition regulations, the editor of the Pittsburgher warns that "Nations can be governed by bad laws, but never by absurdities." Now Nowy Polskie of Milwaukee finds
"all over the country a turn in public opinion against prohibition," and the Buffalo Dziennik Dia Wasystich thinks our maritime commerce must surely suffer because of attempts to exclude liquor from ships entering American ports.

"The dregs are demanding that the whole army be mobilized to enforce prohibition, since there is no war and the soldiers have nothing to do,"
says the Hungarian Amerikai Magyar Nepszava, New York, which later concludes that "It will cost fifteen million dollars yearly to support the new prohibition army that will, in spite of New York, enforce the prohibition law."

Rootleggers and Red Indians.

Resolute demands for Prohibition, without any turning aside for "personal liberty." Light wines or beer, come from the Russian Novoye Russkoye Slovo, New York, which under the caption "Blood and Wine" reminds its readers that "Last year three hundred government agents who enforced the prohibition laws were killed."
In like manner the Red Indians formerly resisted and slew the pioneers of America. Blood is now spilled for wine, as a few years ago it flowed for democracy, for the abolition of war, for the fourteen points. How hard it is for a new idea to possess the masses. How stubbornly man refuses to protect himself! What can be more important than human health? For a nonsensical, poisonous drink, which man needs about as much as a wagon needs a fifth wheel; for a few bottles of gin and some gallons of wine, human lives are sacrificed... The war for wine is not yet over. It is a most pitiful civil war—a stubborn and idiotic war." Dussky Golos, New York refers to the allegation of a well known labor leader that the wage earners want beer and light wines restored, and adds: "We have always considered the sale of alcoholic drinks a great evil for the workers, inducing drunkenness and stupidity.
Now we are told that the prosperity of the workers requires these drinks. One thing is certain: It is easier to fool a man when he is full of drink. He will then believe anything—even that Mr. Gompers is defending the true interests of labor." Now Mr. New York, attacks the practice of dispensing alcoholic drinks as medicine through the drug stores, charging that druggists in New York city collected $1,750,000 on liquor prescriptions during 1922. "Physicians evidently have come to regard whiskey as a panacea for all human ailments," it observes.

Ten Commandments and "Personal Liberty."

With emphasis equally dry the Czechoslovak Krestan, Madison, N.
J., declares, "The American people wanted Prohibition and, therefore, brought it about. Now they are demanding its continued enforcement and they will have their way. John Barleycorn is buried and will not be resurrected between now and the judgment day." Denni Biasatel, which addresses the same nationality in Chicago, finds much irony in the plight of Democratic Southerners who, although devoted to Prohibition, must listen to the Democratic governor of New York make a powerful plea for beer and wine on the ground of state rights, "a principle which formerly was regarded as sacred by the south."
Wet sentiment in the same group is voiced by the American of Cleveland, whose editor thinks,
"The action taken by New York will be encouragement to other states." It signifies that the people are beginning to realize that they need not tolerate the rule of fanatics."

A dry alarm sounded by the Swedish Forbundet, Chicago, is that "For prohibitionists all over the country Governor Smith's act ought to be a warning to put every force in action and defeat those whose aim it is to have the Prohibition Law repealed." And a frontal attack upon the "personal liberty" plea is launched by the Los Angeles Veekeblad with its reminder that "The Ten Commandments are the greatest barriers limiting personal liberty. We are so closely associated in modern life that one person's acts and habits concern all other people. This lofty talk about personal rights is silly. Those who indulge in it most frequently would be the first to demand a limitation of such rights if someone else should trespass on their toes." But the Nordstjeran, New York, praises
Governor Smith for obeying a plain mandate from the people when he sanctioned the enforcement repealer, and adds that he "strongly sets forth the difference in the duties and rights of the Federal government and those of the states, as expressed in the Constitution."

"Sober Striker Keeps The Peace."

A trick of politicians to divide the voters is what the Jugoslav Proveta, Chicago, sees in the whole enforcement agitation. "If the people in a particular district are for prohibition," we read, "the Old Guard and the Bourbons will shout for still greater enforcement, but if the voters seem to be against prohibition then the professional politicians will emphasize that they are for 'booze'.

Labor has been greatly benefited by the ban against liquor, thinks the Lithuanian Darbininkas, Boston, which points to the relatively good order marking many big strikes since Prohibition went into effect.
"Drunken strikers need only a spark to start a conflagration," it tells us, while "Sober workmen keep the peace and are hard to provoke to disorders. They have better self-control. The closing of the saloons has helped the worker in the fight for better living conditions." Another Lithuanian organ, the Chicago Draugas, follows its cryptic, "New York abandons the good ship Prohibition," with a warning to its readers that "as long as prohibition is one of the laws of the land we are obliged to live up to it in every respect. No attention should be paid to those who tell you otherwise.
Our duty is to obey the law. It is only by so doing that we can claim to be loyal to the Constitution of the United States."

DEMOCRATS HELD CITY CAUCUSES

Thursday Evening Local Democracy went to Polls and Elected Delegates to Attend Official Convention, and Also Named Chairs for Local Offices.

Thursday evening Democratic caucuses were held in the various wards of the city for the purpose of electing delegates to attend the official convention to be held at the Kingston Opera House on August 9, and also to select candidates for alderman and supervisor. There was but little interest displayed in the caucuses as it was believed that chairman James J. Murphy and his assistants had arranged matters so as to have their candidates selected at the unofficial convention.

The result of the caucuses follow:

First Ward.
Delegates—John G. Merritt, Mark Sampson, John E. Kraft.
Committeemen—John E. Kraft, Mark Sampson.
Supervisor—Carlton B. Preston.

Third Ward.

Gen. E. H. Crowder.

Major-General Enoch H. Crowder, who managed the draft in the World War and who is now American Ambassador to Cuba, has been recalled to Washington for conferences with officials of the State Department. The action of the Cuban Congress in passing the State Lottery bill over the protests of America and over the Cuban President's veto, adding to it a gratuitous note that it was none of America's business and condemning American "interference," is believed to be the topic that will be discussed.

SAMETH TO TRANSFER HIS LIGHTING FRANCHISES

And Property to Corporation at Fleischmanns.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Aug. 3.—The Public Service Commission has authorized John J. Sameth, operating an electric lighting plant in Fleischmanns, N. Y., to transfer his franchises and property to the Fleischmanns Light, Heat & Power Company, recently formed. Permission was also given the latter to operate and to issue bonds to provide for new construction, which will result in better service in Fleischmanns.

Present service by Sameth has not been satisfactory to his customers, and the property will be at once taken over by the corporation. Steps are under way to procure additional equipment, including new engines, generators and other electrical equipment.

POWER LINE ACQUIRES RIGHTS IN TWO TOWNS.

Howard Chipp, as referee, has filed his report giving judgment in favor of plaintiffs and granting prayer of petitioner in the action brought by Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company in its action to acquire easement or right of way for construction of steel tower electric transmission lines across premises in the towns of Plattekill and Shawangunk, of Byron L. Shultis, Albina H. Shultis, the New Paltz Savings Bank, Daniel A. Hasbrouck, Jennie Hasbrouck and Daniel Lucy, William S. Branner, Mary Branner and Joseph Hasbrouck, Matthew J. Donagan and ors., Joseph E. Hasbrouck, Ida E. Hasbrouck, Edward Hartney and others.

Factories Poorly Lighted.
Lighting experts state that only 20 per cent of the factories of the United States are adequately lighted—in other words 80 per cent are illuminated below normal.

WEDNESDAY EVENING AT SAULIER SUMMER SCHOOL

Mrs. May Cornell Stolter, formerly introduced to the Kingston public, gave as her subject for her Wednesday evening's address, "Who Is Your Banker?" Increasingly large numbers have attended the lectures and classes this week.

Miss Clara Almee Gottschalk of New York city, a niece of Louis M. Gottschalk, the famous composer of "The Last Hope," and a most accomplished pianiste, contributed greatly to the concert which followed.

Mrs. Llewellyn Norris sang charmingly "Kathleen Mavourneen" by Croft, and also "The Low Backed Cat" by Laver.

The last number on the program was a violin solo by Hans Weissmann, "Hejre Kati" (Czardas) by Hubay. Mrs. Weissmann accompanied at the piano.

On Saturday evening there will be held the annual fair to which the public is cordially invited.

WITTENBERG.

Wittenberg, Aug. 2.—The Willing Workers' Society of the Wittenberg M. E. Church will hold its fair on the church grounds on Wednesday, August 15, afternoon and evening. Supper and refreshments will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Vishman and family of Long Island are spending some time at their home here.

Miss Lou Dora Rieley was operated upon at the Bendwin Hospital for appendicitis on Tuesday. All hope for her speedy recovery.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Lane upon the arrival of a little boy on Saturday.

Miss Helen Short is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. C. P. Reynolds, of Woodstock.

The American capital ranks as the best-shaded city in the world, Paris, France, being second.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE GRIEVE

Special Editions of Newspapers Praise His Sincerity—Americans Issue Statements.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Aug. 3.—The death of Warren G. Harding, 29th president of the United States, left all England still and shocked today as though it mourned the passing of one of its own loved ones.

With the first brief cable dispatches bringing the death message, flags on the American embassy were lowered.

Shouting newsboys with extras spread the news. The embassy was besieged with telephone inquiries.

King George ordered the court mourning for a week. Premier Baldwin was deeply affected and prepared a message of sympathy. Lord Robert Cecil, Sir Charles Wakefield and others who knew the president expressed their sorrow.

Newspapers issued special editions announcing the president's death and paying tribute to him.

"Few chief magistrates have more completely won the regard of British people than President Harding," said the Daily Standard.

"President Harding had contrived to make his amiable personality felt across the Atlantic."

The Standard undertook an estimate of President Harding's place in the list of American presidents.

"Through he cannot be numbered among the great presidents," the newspaper says, "he will occupy a high place among the useful ones."

"The highest tribute that can be paid to his memory is that his absolute sincerity has never been questioned," says the Evening News.

"Every promise that he gave he fulfilled. Under his rule, Anglo-American relations happily have grown closer and more cordial."

"President Harding was the first journalist to attain that high office," said the Star, "and we take pride in the reflection that he has done nothing to reflect unworthily on his profession and ours."

The British debt settlement and the disarmament conference were the president's great achievements, the Star said.

Americans in London paid appreciative tribute to the president.

"I fear President Harding sacrificed his life trying best to fulfill the duties of his great office," said Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University. "He had a high conception of his office and no thought except the welfare of his countrymen."

"The death of President Harding takes from the world a sincere, honest man who faced all difficulties with courage," said Irving T. Bush.

Former Senator A. B. Fall, of New Mexico, credited with having been one of the president's closest friends, received the news as a great blow.

"The president was beloved of all," he said. "He was one of America's really great men. The secret of his greatness lay in his true humanity, his kindly nature and his desire to use his life for the benefit of his fellowmen."

"I believe his death was due to constant overwork," said Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio. "Every American will regret his death. The loss to the nation and the party is incalculable."

Paris, Aug. 3.—France's grief over the passing of President Harding was expressed today in an impressive message of condolence from Premier Raymond Poincare.

"All of the people of France bow their heads in sympathy with the grief which moves the United States," said M. Poincare. "Yesterday, the world's press told of President Harding's noble words in the magnificent testament in which he recommends to his fellow citizens the permanent work of international justice in which United States would participate."

He outlined in admirable language the essential conditions surrounding a court. This was the final action of a man ready to resign supreme power to enter into the silence of eternity. Is this not the most beautiful counsel the chief of a state can leave to the country over which he was governed and to a great people who invested him with power?

M. Poincare signed his name to the statement in the presence of American Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon and Myron T. Herrick, the American ambassador.

Ambassador Herrick was visibly moved by the death of the American executive. He said:

"This news came to me as a tremendous shock. Yesterday I sent a message of congratulation to Mrs. Harding on the good news of her husband's improvement. He was lieutenant governor under me in Ohio and I loved him as a brother. His death is a calamity to the entire world."

"Yes, it is a terrible shock," declared Secretary Mellon, who was standing by.

After sending a message of condolence to Mrs. Harding, Ambassador Herrick made preparations to sail for home tomorrow on the liner Paris.

The newspaper La Liberté issued a special edition with a picture of the late President Harding bearing the caption: "A Friend of France."

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America)

MOTHERS AID SCOUT SONS

"Mother," whose commendation counts for the most and whose approval is hardest to win in matters pertaining to the welfare of her boy, is more and more showing herself "heart and soul" with scouting, as attested by the growing number of scout mothers' clubs and auxiliaries.

"Faith, love and protection of our boys," is the motto of the Topeka (Kan.) Scout Mothers' club; its purpose, "To assist the scoutmaster in any possible way in advancing the cause and to learn in our association together, more of our responsibilities as mothers of scouts."

In Portsmouth, Va., members of the Scouts' Mothers' club wear bows of ribbon in accordance with the rating of their boys. This club aims to keep the meaning of the scout oath and law before the community, to maintain a feeling of comradeship between mother and son, to co-operate with the scout leaders in their work and to put before new residents the advantage of having their boys join the scout movement.

"We are very proud of our Scout Mothers' club and think it would be splendid for every troop to have one," advocates a Buffalo scoutmaster. From Philadelphia comes the statement: "Mothers' auxiliaries formed in a number of our troops seem to be filling a real need. The miniature pin for women associates is popular in Montclair, N. J., and worn by worthwhile women, certainly carries a local scout official."

In a number of other communities well-organized clubs with constitutions and by-laws exist and do a splendid work.

"The supreme compliment to scouting," says a woman observer, "is the mother's praise and assistance."

HONOR UNKNOWN SOLDIERS

The head of the family scanned his favorite evening paper, looked up at mother cleaning the dishes, grunted, and remarked: "If that boy of yours"

"He's your son as well as mine," sweetly reminded his wife.

"If that boy of yours," unheeding continued the husband, "if he hasn't brains enough to earn any money for a car, where do you suppose he'll get the sense to drive one properly?"

"Isn't he working himself up?" "Working himself up? Three years at ten dollars. Speed!" he snorted. "Then why don't you pay him more?"

"More? He's getting too much already. The latest... Spelling my good help in the office. All he thinks about is cars and good times..."

He slapped the right arm of the chair, "Enough wasting talk on him. Get my shoes and cup of tea, mother."

Breathing heavily, he again examined the printed columns.

"What he needs is a good old-fashioned spanking," he added.

Mrs. Cadell set a cup of iced tea on the ample arm of the chair and resumed her ever-unfinished sox darning.

"Four hundred arrests made last month here for speeding! That doesn't include the fines, or drunken, one-arm, nervous and inexperienced driving. Innocent people, little children, animals, are murdered in cold blood because some one backed a car too soon, forgot to blow his horn, flew around a dangerous curve, skidded past a crossroad, tried to beat the car ahead of him—all that and more, and these criminals are let loose!"

"Slaughtering... harvesting human beings like wheat—speed maniacs—and your son wants to belong to that class! That rattle-brained nancy thinks he knows what isn't good for him."

"You're spilling your tea," calmly observed Mrs. Cadell, deftly knotting the black thread.

The comfortable man stopped talking for a while. He could not talk and sip hot tea at the same time. A friendly warmth spread and invaded and thawed every nook and corner of his latest being. Much soothed, he spoke again, quieter: "Don't forget, mother, that when you sit behind a steering wheel you forfeit your life in the machinery's keeping. Suppose a brake refuses to work in an emergency, or the car stalls on a train track, or the steering wheel goes wrong on a narrow wooden bridge, or the whole shebang skids down a slippery hill. They're dangerous contraptions, they are... gas and noise and cold-blooded murder."

A delicious drowsiness stole in, through and over the middle-aged speaker. The paper slipped from his toll-worn hands upon the floor. Rapid, regular ticks of the mahogany clock on the shelf accented the peaceful silence. Soon a rhythmic drone attacked every twentieth tick of the clock. Mrs. Cadell was nodding. His snore continued.

At length she awoke with a start. Lifted heavy eyelids and consulted the clock. "Past eleven! Father, I'm going to get the bed ready. Time to go to sleep."

He roused generously, stretched, and shook himself like a bear. Suddenly the door flew open and Ned danced in, planting two substantial kisses on his mother's bewildered

"CIVIC HIKE" FOR SCOUTS

A number of boy scout councils make use of a "know-your-city" series of hikes to strengthen civic pride and interest. Milwaukee, Wis.; Newark, N. J.; Seattle, Wash.; Washington, D. C. and Stamford, Conn. are among those councils sponsoring trips to various points of industrial and historical interest. A visit to the local telephone company, an inspection of manufacturing plants, a tour of historic landmarks are typical features of this knowledge-by-hiking activity.

Defective Vision Widespread.

It is stated that out of 42,000,000 persons gainfully employed in the United States over 25,000,000 are handicapped by defective vision resulting from cataracts. Correct lighting methods would do much to improve this appalling condition.

The Spreading Epidemic

By ROSE E. BAKALAR

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

In the dining room of a small town, side-street flat, a middle-aged pair and their son were seated at an old-fashioned square table finishing their evening meal. The daily discussion was in progress.

The man raised a warning fork, shook it slowly, narrowed, or, at least, tried to narrow, his naturally contracted, washed-out blue eyes, and proclaimed in a steady voice:

"Remember! Once and for all! This is the last time! I warn you to stop! Not a breath of an auto around here, ever, hereafter. Forget it!"

"I told you a thousand times you can't be too careful driving, and I won't be responsible. I won't allow it. I won't have my only son on an accident chaser, a speed fiend, an auto crank, cheering for death!"

"Father! Don't be so violent. You'll break the dishes," cautioned Mrs. Cadell.

"Violent? I'm mild as a trained flea compared to what I ought to be. Can't that auto pest take 'no' for an answer? At twenty-one it's about time he had a little brains. Not another word do I want to hear uttered in this house about autos. Remember that!"

Mr. Cadell hoisted his bulky body and waddled from the table to his favorite armchair near the furnace grating.

The mother turned to Ned. "Why should you set your heart so much on a machine, dear, when there are so many other enjoyable things? Is it so necessary?"

"Yes, mother. I've got to have it. All my friends own them—why can't I? Father can afford a little runabout. Why's he so close?"

She patted his arm. "He's not close, dear. You know that. He buys you 'most everything else you wish. In this case he's only cautious."

Ned rose. "He's too cautious altogether. So is a dead man. Don't wait up for me, mother. I'm going to the Y. M. C. A. Good-night." He slammed the door.

The head of the family scanned his favorite evening paper, looked up at mother cleaning the dishes, grunted, and remarked: "If that boy of yours"

face. The father's sleep-drawn eyes tried to express surprise, but only succeeded in blinking.

"I've got it! I've got it!" he yelled, wildly waving a paper scrap under his shocked father's nose.

"He's lost the bit of sense he was born with."

"Auto, dad! Bazaar! Win! Win! Bazaar!"

"Calm down a bit, dear, then tell me what you are talking about."

The boy dropped into a chair and weakly fanned himself with his crushed hat. "I won that auto race at the Y. M. C. A. bazaar."

COOLIDGE ON KNICKERBOCKER

President Calvin C. Coolidge left this afternoon at 2:40, day-saving time, and passed through Rhinecliff about 3:40 on way to the city of Washington. He was on "The Knickerbocker Express" which arrived in Poughkeepsie at 4:06, Poughkeepsie being one of its regular stops.

KIWANIS CLUB WEEKLY LUNCHEON

Skeletonizer and Field Guns Among the Destructive Agencies Discussed—May Get Lateral Here. Songs, old and new, and then more songs, were sung by the Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon Monday. President Gates said he has determined to have whoever goes to the state convention at Washington in September well trained along this line and commanded Henry Darrow to keep them at it, even as he does the men who lay sheet asphalt.

Several members were called on for information. Abraham Jansen, of Paltz's famous fruit grower, being asked why the leaves on so many fruit trees have turned brown and dead. He said this was due to a worm called the least skeletonizer. While this pest has been recognized before, it was not until this year that he has done serious damage in this section. Now, all apple trees in this section, which were not sprayed at the right time are affected and the bearing properties of the trees next year may suffer greatly. The proper time to spray was about two weeks ago when the skeletonizers were first noticed. Mr. Jansen did this and his trees do not show the work of the worm, which eats off the surface of the leaves, leaving the skeleton, which of course, dies.

Max Reben was in Portland, Me., last week where he was entertained by members of the Portland Kiwanis Club. This club has a luncheon which combine the famous New England food and cooking at 15 cents per person. Charles N. Behrens, who was one of the 100 members of the local immunization train units that got back from training camp last Sunday, told something about the camp. He said the boys enjoyed every minute of it and were generally sorry to come home. Battery of this city and Battery H of Newburgh were in a close race for honors as the most efficient battery camp but the judges had not yet made their decision. Batteries E and I, which are now organizations that in war would transport ammunition to the batteries in action, generally from the rail head, may be changed into field artillery companies as a result of their high rating at camp. If this is done it would entail the buying of a farm near Kingston for a range, equipped with 75 millimeter field guns and the doubling in strength of the two units. The boys this year trained with the 155 millimeter guns which they found more satisfactory than the 75's they used last year.

Frank Davis won the attendance prize but he wouldn't take the wrapper off in public as it looked like a box of cigars.

EASTERN STAR OUTING TO NEWBURGH SATURDAY

An outing and sail to Newburgh on the steamer B. E. Odell will be held Saturday morning under the auspices of Kingston Chapter, No. 155, O. E. S., to which the public is invited. Tickets may be obtained at the steamer landing that morning. The Odell will leave Rondout at 11 o'clock that morning. The return from Newburgh will be made on one of the Central Hudson steamers leaving that city at 5:15 o'clock that afternoon.

PHRENOLOGIST AT SAHLER SUMMER SCHOOL

Miss Jessie Allen Fowler, eminent phrenologist of New York city, will deliver an address this evening at the Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanitarium at 8 o'clock, on "Effect of Colors" illustrating her subject.

Miss Fowler will also give some demonstrations on the blackboard of different kinds of handwriting and what they mean.

On Saturday evening, there will be the annual fair which always results at the close of the summer school.

President at Mother's Grave.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 3.—The last of President Calvin Coolidge before he left his birth place today for Washington to assume his official duties, was to kneel at the graves of his mother and sister in the old Plymouth Cemetery here. The president was accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge.

Mad-Cap Dance.

MARKETS IDLE AS TRIBUTE TO DEAD

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Aug. 3.—The New York financial district today paid tribute and respect to the memory of President Harding.

Announcement was made that the stock exchange, curb exchange and coffee exchange would remain closed for the day. Flags were at half mast on buildings in the financial district. The following resolution was passed by the board of governors of the stock exchange:

"Sorrowing with the nation in the great loss which falls upon us in the death of our beloved and honored chief magistrate, Warren G. Harding, and as an expression of our profound grief he it resolved that the New York Stock Exchange be closed today and upon the day of the funeral, Chicago, Aug. 3.—The Chicago Board of Trade remained closed today in respect to the memory of the president. The stock exchange and other markets were also closed.

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE STANDING

The managers and directors of the Industrial League held a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Broadway Thursday night. Since the first meeting of the league just two teams have dropped out, namely, the U. S. Lace Mills, and the Fessenden Shirt Company. The members present decided to leave the schedule as it is and merely declare the games between the teams which have dropped out and other teams forfeited. The race is close at the present time and with just one month more to play there are four teams which have a chance for the two cups which are being offered to the winner.

In the event of a tie at the end of the season the championship game will be played at the Fair Grounds at 5 o'clock. Two cups are being offered to the winner. One of the cups is furnished by Draper and Maynard and another cup will be furnished in the near future.

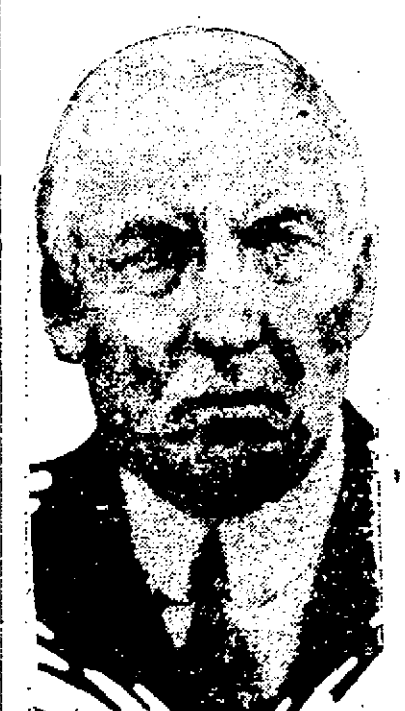

Tonight the Kingston Gas & Electric Company and the Bath Company will play at Hasbrouck Park.

The standing of the teams to date is as follows:

	Played	W.	L.	P.
Shik Mill	12	11	1	917
U. S. D.	11	10	1	909
Van Slyke & Horton	12	8	4	688
Kingston G. & E. Co.	11	6	5	545
Jacobson	10	5	5	500
L. Barth & Co.	9	2	7	222
Fessenden	11	1	10	981
Lace Mills	10	0	10	000

CHAPPIE JOHNSON BEATS COXSACKIE

Chappie Johnson's Philadelphia Royal Stars defeated the Coxsackie baseball club at Coxsackie on Thursday by a 4-1 score. The game was well played on the part of both teams and was full of interest for the fans. Dick Williams was unable to be at the game Thursday and as a result Gene Herman did the hurling for the upriver club. Smodes was behind the bat and Glaser, Moore and Galt were also in the line up. Coxsackie plays the Brotherhoods of Watervliet on Sunday at Coxsackie.

Warren G. Harding

This remarkable photograph of President Harding, the last taken before his serious illness in San Francisco, showed plainly the fatigue the Chief Magistrate was suffering as a result of his long tour and speech making.

TAXI DRIVERS SAVE LITTLE LAD FROM RONDOUT CREEK.

This noon a lady from Rhinebeck, accompanied by her little five year old son were waiting under the ferry shed for the Transport. The little boy wandered over to the dock where some boys were in swimming and one of the swimmers grasped the boy by the arm and either jumped or fell overboard with him. Fortunately, Bob Boyle and Frank Tigar, two taxi drivers, were near and they got the little fellow safely out of the water. The mother fainted but was revived.

New Notaries.

The following have been appointed by Governor Smith notaries public in and for Ulster county: Max C. Ferro, West Hurley; J. DuBois Gillette, Port Jervis; Clyde K. Wood, Albany avenue, Kingston.

FEATHERS OF STUFFED PARROT STILL GROWING

Clippings Made During Past Thirty Years Now Measure Six Feet.

"Alex," a parrot born in Central America fifty-four years ago, sits in a glass case at the residence of his owner, Mrs. George Spellman at New Orleans.

"Polly Alex" never stirs and he never talks.

The only sign of animation about him—and this is a slow process—is the feathers. They grow steadily. Every six months or so Mrs. Spellman has to trim them in order for "Polly Alex" to fit in the glass case.

The parrot has been dead for thirty years. He was twenty-four years old when he died. He was given to Mrs. Spellman when she was a baby.

"I have trimmed the feathers, tail, wings and sides of Polly Alex at least once a year for thirty years," said Mrs. Spellman. "At first many persons were incredulous, so I have been saving the trimmings. In thirty years I have trimmed more than six feet of feathers from the bird."

Mr. Spellman is sexton of a cemetery near the Spellman home and he spoke with authority when he told of how hair and finger and toenails of humans beings grow after death.

"I have seen very long hair and long nails on several bodies we disinterred," said Mr. Spellman. "I couldn't explain how or why they grow, but I do know they do just as I know about our bird."

"I am very fond of Polly Alex," chimed in Mrs. Spellman. "He's been dead thirty years, but because his feathers grow he still seems alive. He was a constant companion for twenty-four years. It was a great sorrow to my family when he died, but after he returned from the taxidermist very much lifelike he seemed to be still with us. After we discovered his feathers were growing he seemed more alive than ever."

Polly Alex. For a long time I have thought I would like to have him buried with me when I die, but perhaps I will give him to some museum."

But if he's given to any museum, Mrs. Spellman indicated, it will be with the provision that his feathers are to be manicured at least once a year.

SAYS EXPLOSION OF ATOM WOULD DESTROY WORLD

Sir Ernest Rutherford of England, former winner of the Nobel prize for chemistry, and the world's leading authority on atomic structure, whose experiments, brought down to the understanding of the lay mind, mean that by firing an atom, which, like the rest of the world, is filled with hydrogen, the entire world will explode in a puff of smoke. However, have no fear—no atom has yet been exploded. It is believed that Sir Ernest's experiments are so fundamental as to promise solution of many problems of physics which a few years ago seemed incapable of solution, among them actual transmutation of elements, or rather of some of the lighter ones, and the possibility of harnessing the stupendous energy at present locked up in the complex structure of the atom.

U. S. SLOW IN WAR CHEMICALS

Other Nations, With Japan and Germany in Lead, Excel America. Foreign nations are outstripping America in the development of chemicals for warfare, with Japan and Germany collaborating in secret, the American Chemical Society charges.

"We learn," said an official bulletin issued by the society, "that Italy has organized a chemical warfare service of twice the strength of our own; that Belgium also has organized a new chemical warfare service, and that both France and England continue active support of their services. In Germany the only official activity is the chemical warfare defense school. Japan has purchased from the German industries such warfare secrets as are wanted and the various contributions made by Japan for support of certain German universities are said to be one method of paying for the information secured."

Joker Pays $1,251 Damages for Jest.

A "practical joker" paid $1,251 damages to Mrs. Mae Griffin of Des Moines, Ia., as settlement for her claim for an injured spine. The joker had pulled a chair from under her as she was about to sit down.

SENSATIONAL WHITE SOX INFIELDER

When President Charles Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox turned over $100,000 for Willie Kamm, the sensational third baseman of the San Francisco club last year, some folks didn't see the reason for it. But Kamm has proved himself of tremendous value to the Chicago team. He is credited with being one of the most graceful fielders in the game, and in addition can sock the old apple a few.

Juvenile Swim Champ

Helen Briscoe, thirteen years old, won the 100-meter swim for women recently in Madison Square Garden, New York, defeating three champions, including her sister, Florence Briscoe, the national junior diving champion.

A 50-mile endurance canoe race is to be held near Chicago, Ill.

A champion prize fight is like war. It doesn't settle anything permanently.

Willie Spencer, American bicycle champion, won 16 races and lost seven in his European tour.

Prize-fight promoters who charge more than the traffic will bear naturally are caught holding the bag.

In Cleveland, O., 200 specially trained caddies are now on duty at the Highland park course every day.

Bill Johnson, American tennis star, and by many called the "greatest of the great," weighs only 126 pounds.

Maybe the great fascination in golf for a lot of players lies in the fact that they are their own umpires and official scorers.

William Ogg, Worcester professional golfer, broke the course record at the Lido golf links, with a 68 score, five under the record.

The Spanish lawn tennis team in the Davis cup competition eliminated Holland from the European semi-finals by winning the doubles.

Ed Geers will send his string of racers to Syracuse September 10 for the Grand Circuit races. The big feature will be the $10,000 Empire State race for 2:04 trotters.

Tennis is universally played in China, and every city, town or settlement where the foreigner has penetrated contains a tennis court or courts.

J. F. Prothero, a band leader, and J. F. Reichle, a theatrical manager, announce that they have telegraphed Jack Kearns, offering $500,000 for a Dempsey-Willard fight, to be staged in Tulsa on Labor day, declaring an oil millionaire agreed to put up $200,000.

The Desire for Good.
 By desiring what is perfectly good, even when we didn't quite know what it is and cannot do what we would, we are part of the Divine power against evil—widening the skirts of light, and making the struggle with darkness narrower.—George Eliot.

Baseball Notes

Duffy Lewis, the former big leaguer, can still hammer the ball.

Georgia Tech baseball nine executed 21 double plays this year.

A satisfied ball player is one thing and a self-satisfied apple-chaser is another.

The San Francisco Seals are running away with the Pacific Coast league race.

Eddie Dyer, with Houston, seems to have gotten back into the company in which he can hit.

Grover Cleveland Alexander confesses that of all batters in the National league Hornsby bothers him the most.

The Augusta club has transferred Paul Wanninger, young infielder, to the Okmulgee team of the Western association.

Youth may have its fling but age, in the person of old Cy Williams bursts the flings right back at the young pitchers.

Pat Ragan, veteran pitchers' coach of the Philadelphia National League team, has been appointed captain by Manager Fletcher.

The San Antonio club of the Texas league sent Pitcher Jim Roberts on trial to the Nashville club of the Southern association.

Clarence Kraft of Fort Worth, having got the range late, is hustling to make up time as the leading home-run hitter of the Texas league.

Frank Frisch, the Fordham Flash, still has a long way to go before he will class with the veteran Max Carey as a purveyor of sacks.

Lehigh university, in Pennsylvania, is seeking to discourage the "fans" from "razzing the umpire." Why, that's nine-tenths of the sport.

The Minneapolis club has called in Wally Gilbert, third baseman, from St. Joseph, and sent Billy Houlahan to St. Joe to replace him.

Some say that college baseball does not attract the crowds. Yet 18,000 saw Holy Cross and Boston college teams play at Worcester, Mass.

Sam Hyman, former Georgetown southpaw hurler, is pitching good ball for New Haven in the Eastern association. He belongs to the Detroit Tigers.

Walter Hunsinger, star pitcher of the University of Pennsylvania nine, and a recent graduate, entered the big leagues as a member of the New York Giants.

Manager McGraw of the New York Giants released Clinton Brame on option to the Memphis club of the Southern league and George Sullivan, former University of Pennsylvania infielder, to San Antonio.

After loading all the time with Cleveland, Les Nubamaker now works every day behind the bat for his Chattanooga team in the Southern association. Nubamaker is manager.

Charles Hall, going in as a relief pitcher in the seventh inning for St. Paul in the game with Minneapolis on July 3, hit a home run with two on when it came his turn to bat in the ninth, and thus won his own game, 5 to 4.

VARIETY OF ATTRACTIONS FOR MASONIC FIELD DAY

Added attractions have been secured for the "big time" the Masons are to have at their Field Day outing at the Ritz Allen at Woodstock on Tuesday of next week. Miss Ruth Shrader of Woodstock who has been dancing at the Hippodrome for the past two years will give an exhibition of toe dancing. The "Events" committee are arranging for a barn yard golf tournament, sack races, running races, potato races and equipment races for both men and women. Prizes for winners. The baseball game is expected to be a lively one. It will be between teams from Roundout Lodge and Kingston Lodge. Arthur Rice will captain the Roundout Lodge team and Judge Schrick will captain the Kingston Lodge team. Watch for Babe McBride to make a couple of home runs. Game starts at 5:30. Mrs. Nann, the popular Eastern Star singer, will sing and it is expected that a well known parlitone from New York will sing some songs. The events will start at 5:00 o'clock, dinner will be served at 7:30. It will be a roast beef dinner with all the trimmings. The entertainment will open at 8:30, and dancing will start at 9:30, and all for the price of the dinner.

Anyone not provided with a conveyance to take them to Woodstock can phone Masonic Club room, 1324-W, and they will see that a conveyance calls for them. A few tickets are left and may be purchased at Ostrander & Woolsey's clothing store, Kingston Trust Co. branch, this place.

ONEONTA HERE
AUGUST 18, 19

The Oneonta Giants, under the command of Manager Bridwell, will appear in this city on August 18 and 19. These two dates fall on Saturday and Sunday respectively. There is a strong possibility that two games will be played between the two teams on Saturday and one on Sunday. Kingston will also play the Oneonta club two games in Oneonta before the season is over.

For September 2 Manager Brown has booked the strong Sing Sing prison team to play at the Fair Grounds. On Wednesday, August 29, the local team will play at the Dutchess County Fair with Red Hook as their probable opponents.

After Sunday's game with the Schatz Club of Poughkeepsie it is altogether likely that no further games will be played with this club until September when the series of twelve games between the two clubs will be brought to a close.

STAMFORD TEAM
FINDING ITSELF

At last the Stamford baseball team seems to be finding itself. After a good many poor starts the members have come to the point where they are capable of beating some of the leading teams in this vicinity.

The early part of this week Tannersville fell before the onslaughts of this team twice. On Sunday Tracy of Stamford and Suhre of Tannersville engaged in a pitching duel, with Tracy having the edge, and Stamford winning by a 2 to 1 score. On Monday Stamford again defeated the Tannersville outfit, this time by a 4 to 2 score. State hurled them over for Stamford and Boyle did the pitching for Tannersville.

The Colonials of this city will engage this team at the Fair Grounds on Wednesday of next week and they will journey to Stamford on Friday, August 17. Besides these two games three others will be arranged between the two teams.

DWYER ALL STARS

WIN AFTER TWO GAMES

Thursday evening at the Hasbrouck Park about 200 fans were treated to a taste of real pitching, when Cullen and Hotelling engaged in a pitching duel with Cullen taking first honors.

The first inning proved disastrous to the Kelley All Stars when they spotted the Dwyer All Stars to a one run lead. Cullen was master of the situation all the way through and was only threatened once, that being in the ninth inning, when two walks and several errors due to the darkness that enveloped the field gave the Kelley's two runs.

The final score was 8 to 2. Cullen had 18 strike outs and Hotelling 14. On next Tuesday night these teams will engage in the second game of the series.

Raid at Brickyard.

Thursday morning at 2.30 o'clock Officer Carle of the Saugerties police force and State Trooper Winter paid a visit to Washburn Brothers Company brickyard at Glasco and arrested George Williams and Edith Allen of this city. Mary Fields of Catskill and Barbara Smith of New York city, on a charge of disorderly conduct. The quartet were released in $5 bail each for appearance in police court Thursday morning. Failing to put in an appearance, the bail was forfeited.

A PUBLIC MARKET
STILL IN DOUBT

The question of whether Kingston will have a public market again this season has not been definitely settled. Owing to the drought earlier in the season there has not been a large crop of early vegetables raised, which is one of the reasons why it had not been found necessary to open the market.

Another reason was that the Market Growers' Association were anxious to have the market located on Field Court instead of Cornell street, and the matter was taken up and it was found that Field Court could be had by paying a rent of $150. Of that amount the city would pay half and the Chamber of Commerce the other half.

John Herring of Ulster Park, president of the Market Growers' Association, has been notified that the rent for Field Court would be met by the Chamber of Commerce and the city provided the association was willing to deposit the amount of the market commissioner's salary with the Chamber of Commerce.

Just what action the Market Growers' Association has taken on the proposition is not known, and the question of whether the market is held this year depends on the association's answer to the proposition.

SCHATZ GIVEN USE OF RIVERVIEW PARK

On Every Other Sunday—Question Has Been in Dispute for Some Time—Kahn Signed for Rest of Season—Here Sunday.

Poughkeepsie, Aug. 3.—(Special)—The Poughkeepsie board of public works met on Thursday night and decided to give J. William Schatz the use of Riverview Field for his ball club on every other Sunday. Ever since the Poughkeepsie Red Sox vacated Riverview Park for their new enclosed diamond the question of whether or not the park should be closed to semi-pro teams on Sunday and held open for the use of amateur teams has been up in the air. The Red Sox put up a strong fight to have the use of the field denied to Schatz on Sundays. Since the beginning of the season Schatz has been compelled to play at home during the week and out of town on Sundays.

Schatz on Thursday signed Jerry Kahn for the rest of the season. Kahn has been pitching off and on for the Schatz Club for the last month or six weeks but it was not until Thursday that Schatz was able to sign him for good.

The Schatz club plays in Kingston on Sunday and Kahn will again oppose the Colonials on the mound.

FEDERAL AGENTS ARREST

THREE AT NEWBURGH

Marvin Canfield, Felix Nicolletti and Stephen Capuro, residents of Newburgh, were arrested Wednesday on warrants alleging the sale of liquor contrary to the provision of the Volstead act. Prohibition agents made the arrests. Canfield claimed that the owners of the place at 181 Broadway, where he was arrested, were William Claire and Thomas Ortale and that he was merely in their employ. All three were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edward J. Collins and each furnished bail in $1,000 to appear later.

Saugerties Striker Arrested.

Joseph Mergenthal, an erstwhile employee of the Martin Cantine Company of Saugerties, was placed under arrest Thursday morning by state troopers on guard at the factory charged with disorderly conduct. He was brought before Police Justice H. D. Abeel, who released him on $100 bail bond for his appearance in court Monday morning, when the hearing will be held. Grant M. Brinler represented Mergenthal.

Abe Gordon Falsified.

This morning Abe Gordon, a fruit peddler residing at No. 7 West Strand, while feeding his horse on Chambers street was seized with a fainting spell and he was removed to the Kingston City Hospital. There he informed Dr. Daniel Connolly that he had not eaten in three days. Later Gordon was taken home in the police car.

AUTO VIOLATORS
PAY $5 FINES

About 1 o'clock this morning Policeman Leonard arrested Eric Winkley of Rifton and Sam H. Carmen of St. Remy, both on a charge of cutting the traffic standard at the entrance to the Rondout Creek Bridge, without blowing a horn and while driving at a great rate of speed. Later in police court Judge Schirick fined them $5 each, which they paid.

George Cramer of 41 Meadow street, arrested Thursday for speeding 30 miles an hour on Broadway, also contributed $5 to the city treasury. He was caught by Motorcycle Officer Soper.

Theron DeWitt of Emerick street, a negro, was arrested on Murray street at 2:15 o'clock this morning by Officer "Slim" Wood. The charge was public intoxication. DeWitt was fined $5.
